

The labor movement is down to 6.9% of the private sector workforce.

The law is stacked against workers who want to organize into unions.

In 2009, the Employee Free Choice Act, which would have strengthened workers right to organize, passed the House of Representatives and had 55 votes out of 100 in favor of passage in the U.S. Senate.

But the EFCA never came to a vote on the floor. The Senate's antiquated and undemocratic filibuster rules allow just 41 Senators to prevent a bill from being voted on.

As the new Congress convenes, the Democrats have the power to change the Senate rules to make it much harder to filibuster pro-worker legislation.

Call Senator Schumer now and tell him: New York's workers need you to lead the fight to change the filibuster rules and make the Senate more democratic.

Changing the Senate rules is the key to strengthening workers' rights.

CALL SENATOR SCHUMER: 1-888-966-9824

Urge him to stand up for real Senate rules reform and co-sponsor Senate Resolutions 4 and 6.

When your call is answered say: "I am calling to ask the Senator to stand up for workers' rights and co-sponsor Senate Resolutions 4 and 6."
